Bringing
Bengaluru's Legacy to Your Legacy

Dr. G. Srinivasan, a respected magistrate and an eminent philanthropist founded Orient press in 1946. Integral to the literary fabric of Karnataka, the Orient press was a revered establishment frequented by political icons, sovereigns and prominent authors. The publishing house embodied the vision of a new independent India; its rich heritage is analogous to its founder and Bengaluru, the city we call our home. Purva Orient Grand is a homage to this legacy.

Mr. G. Srinivasan with Mr. C. Rajagopalachari, the first Governor General of India on the occasion of releasing the Kannada translation of his original Tamil version of Ramayana, which was printed and published at Orient Grand Press.

Home to The Ones Who Define its Pulse

Cities are shaped long before they're built.
By the people who create, lead, preserve,
imagine and reimagine.

The ones who quietly move the city forward.
Because skylines don't define the city, its people do.
